Hackettstown – A group of volunteers from Hackettstown Lowe’s, known as Lowe’s Heroes, lent their expertise and energy to Abilities of Northwest Jersey, painting and installing carpet and flooring at the agency’s newly renovated Hackettstown Center, which is being expanded to accommodate additional service recipients. The renovation includes the construction of a sensory room, funded in part by the John & Margaret Post Foundation, designed to provide a stimulating setting for therapeutic and behavioral interventions.

“We are very grateful to the Lowe’s Heroes their willingness to volunteer at Abilities and all the hard work they did,” said Abilities CDO, Sue Zukoski. “This is a wonderful program that gives back so much to the community. The Hackettstown Lowe’s team are truly heroes in our eyes.”

Lowe’s Heroes is a volunteer program begun 10 years ago which encourages store employees to team together and adopt a volunteer project for a local nonprofit or public school.

Abilities of Northwest Jersey, Inc. is a not-for-profit agency incorporated in 1974 and dedicated to improving the quality of life and employability of persons with different abilities through vocational training and individualized services.
