German Shepherd Florence Scribner

This month I chose to write about German Shepherd dogs.

The German Shepherd is a German breed of working dogs. They are a medium to large size. The breed was developed by Max Von Stephanitz using various traditional German herding dogs. The German Shepherd was originally bred for herding sheep. The life span of this dog is 9-13 years. I like the colors of the dogs; they are very nice looking. These dogs are popular for police work. They are able to smell for a person to help the cops find criminals. The dogs also get to ride in the police car with the cops. When a police dog rides in the car, the side of the car says K9 Unit.
